SYMINGTON SNIPPETS

Although we are into autumn, it still feels like summer in the garden.

We're still harvesting the last of the tomatoes but the French beans, zucchini and the other summer crops have all been gobbled up.

It's been a relief to see the little bit of rain we've had recently. After a long summer holiday the garden was overgrown and we have been playing catch-up trying to get the weeds under control.

We've been making soil (which is what you do when you compost) and preparing beds with fresh compost for winter crops.

Winter root vegetables, greens, brassicas and broad beans have either been sown directly in beds or in trays for the months ahead and we'll be getting some sweetie started soon to add some fragrance and colour to the winter garden. — Sarah McAnallen (Garden Coordinator)
